Hello again!

This summary includes key points of the presentation, knowledge and perspectives from others, and an array of Working Together follow-on resources and references for your continued learning.

Best wishes to you as you make your important contributions. I look forward to seeing you again!

Welcome the unexpected. Look for the uncharted path that bears your name. Lead the way!

dkennedy@globaldialoguecenter.com

AGENDA

- Working differently - Putting differences to work to innovate, influence and win.

- Four critical skills to transcend change and increase YOUR VALUE as a collaborative partner.

- Tips for building, repairing and maintaining collaborative relationships.
On Working Together...

"In the end, the wisdom of teams is within the team itself.

It is not creating the high-performance organization, managing transformational change, enforcing corporate performance ethics, or inspiring new dimensions of leadership.

It is in a small group of people so committed to something larger than themselves that they will not be denied."

_The Wisdom of Teams_
by Jon Katzenbach

Thoughts from Debbe Kennedy:

We need to take the best of what we’ve learned about TEAMWORK to a new level. The spotlight is on COLLABORATION which adds a whole new level of mutual responsibility into the teamwork relationship.

Factors that will drive your effectiveness in innovating, influencing and winning:

- How effectively you collaborate.
- The skills you bring to such a partnership.
- Your capabilities and capacity for creatively solving problems in your work and in your life.
"Men and women were built to put their heads together, not only in their professional lives, but in their personal relations. ...It is time to honor our gender differences, enable women’s natural talents in the workplace, build new understanding between men and women, and work together. Without this fundamental collaboration, both are cheated. Society is cheated, too.”

— Dr. Helen Fisher
The First Sex

KEY POINT:
With all our unique differences, we also have some of the same desires that give us a place to meet on common ground — a place to learn to appreciate one another in new ways, putting our differences to work:

Men and women (on average) show NO difference in “internal competitiveness” — desire to meet personal goals and display excellence.

References:
- The First Sex: The Natural Talents of Women and How They Are Changing the World by Dr. Helen E. Fisher, Anthropologist Rutgers University, Chapters 1-7
- The Debate: Do men and women have different leadership styles? By Susan Vinnicombe, Director, Centre for Developing Women Business Leaders, Cranfield School of Management, United Kingdom
- Gender Differences in Communication by Dr. Beth Vanfossen, Institute for Teaching and Research on Women, Towson University, Maryland
- About Gender: Differences, J. Bland, 1998 with bibliography, United Kingdom
KEY POINT:

The business case for putting our differences to work was validated in the research of futurist and author, Joel A. Barker. He documented it in his landmark film, Wealth, Innovation & Diversity.

His initial concern was to find the relationship between innovation and generating new wealth ---- In the process he discovered a fundamental truth: “Without diversity, there can be no innovation. Without innovation, there can be no new wealth---wealth of many kinds. Therefore, diversity is key to creating new wealth that benefits all.”

Diversity creates many kind of wealth, including...
- wealth of sustainability
- wealth of variety
- wealth of new innovations
- wealth of outsiders, bringing new thinking
- wealth of new value added to the world
- ...and economic wealth too.

He contends that we need to put our differences to work to communicate, cooperate and collaborate in order to reap the advantages of innovation, growth, wealth and progress.
KEY POINTS:
Excellence speaks for itself. It opens doors. Make it your mark of distinction.

Jobs, missions, titles, organizations and leaders will change. Don’t count on them. Instead work to master four critical skills that will help you transcend changes and increase your value as a collaborative partner.

Look for opportunities to master them every day --- in your work and in your life.

Use every assignment or experience as a PRACTICE.
During the Working Together session, participants offered suggestions for a fifth critical skill. There are some good ones!

- Evaluation
- Moral and ethical base
- Emotional intelligence; collaborating
- Positive assertiveness
- Communication; listening; relating to others; understanding other;
  Covey’s “Seek first to understand”
- Endurance – going back and trying different approaches
- Being able to understand that people viewed as a “problem” may in fact be displaying constructive contention.
- Flexibility, adaptability, fluidity, perseverance, and resilience.
- “Information Literacy”
- Systems Thinking
- Celebrating “results achieved”
- Show UP! Be there when you say you will – physically and mentally, too!
Any other ideas?

KEY POINTS:

- When you know how to get things done, you can be adaptable to many situations, assignments, changes and needs within an organization or in your own business.

- People like to work with people who know how to get things accomplished and are willing to roll up their sleeves to participate and deliver on promises.

- Problem-solvers are always in demand, especially in times of change and organizational turmoil. If you are known as someone who can produce, you get invited in when you least expect it.

- Learning to develop, plan, implement and achieve superior results gives you a set of “life skills” as well as work skills. In times of emergency, tragedy or great change, they can lift you up and help you out.

“There is something in each of us that can rise above and beyond everything we think is possible.”

— Alex Pattakos, Ph.D.
author, Prisoners of Our Thoughts
Viktor Frankl’s Principles at Work
KEY POINTS:

Collaboration Yardstick:
The questions below are helpful in choosing collaborative partners. They also work for evaluating how things are working in an “after action review” with your partners, asking: What’s going well? What isn’t? What can we do about it?

Do partners bring individual excellence? What is it?

Is the collaborative relationship mutually-beneficial, so partners want it?

Are partners willing to “invest” in each other, demonstrating their personal commitment?

Do partners need each other; complementary assets/skills? Together, they can DO GREAT THINGS?

Is there an openness in communication; a willingness to share information required to make the relationship work?

Are partners willing to develop mutualistic linkages; developing shared ways of operating; serving as both teachers/learners to one another?

Are partners willing to give their relationship a “formal status” with a sense of responsibility to each other?

Do partners share trust, mutual respect and have mutual best interest as key priorities?

TWO QUESTIONS TO ASK YOURSELF:

What should I contribute?

Where and how can I have results that make a difference?

— Frances Hesselbein

Chairman, Board of Governors
Leader-to-Leader Institute
(Former Peter F. Drucker Foundation)
Recipient of the Presidential Medal of Freedom

Inspired by:

Collaborative Advantage: The art of Alliances

by Rosabeth Moss Kanter
Harvard Business Review

This is an HBR classic article about how organizations are forming alliances. Ms. Kanter’s “Eight I’s that Create Successful We’s” is adaptable and useful to individual collaborations too.
WORKING TOGETHER PODCAST SERIES with Debbe Kennedy
Helping You Put Differences to Work to Innovate, Influence and Win

A monthly professional and personal development audio/PODCAST series with Debbe Kennedy, including access to her books and other resources. Learn more about this new offering and listen to a sample...

ALSO, listen to the widely attended online development seminar, WORKING TOGETHER; WINNING TOGETHER with Debbe Kennedy sponsored and produced by Microsoft® Office Live Meeting LEADERSHIP FORUM on February 23, 2006.

OTHER RELATED WORKING TOGETHER RESOURCES at the Global Dialogue Center

Joel Barker's Wealth, Innovation & Diversity
Putting Our Differences to Work in the 21st Century
In this landmark film and workshop, Joel Barker, renowned futurist and filmmaker, discusses the connection between diversity and innovation and between innovation and wealth. Debbe Kennedy developed the workshop and associated tools for this film. Also, we invite you to visit the FIVE REGIONS OF THE FUTURE exhibit at the Knowledge Gallery at the Global Dialogue Center, a primer to Joel Barker's new work that introduces a new paradigm for how we work together in the 21st Century.

Alex Pattakos, Ph.D., author, Prisoners of Our Thoughts
A pioneer in transformational thinking, innovation, collaboration and the meaning difference. Learn about Dr. Pattakos' life-changing book, applying the wisdom of world-renown psychiatrist, Viktor Frankl to contemporary life and work situations to help you discover deeper meaning and fulfillment. Includes book, podcast, personal blog, survey and more.

Dialogue with Bill Tipton: Life and Work with a Disability
Personal writings, advice and encouragement with a human touch.

Women in the Lead at the Global Dialogue Center
An innovative virtual gathering place of distinction for women around the world. Includes Women in the Lead INSPIRATION Blog with Debbe Kennedy and contributing author, Maureen Simon, Maureen Simon Consulting, our new Women's Gallery and leadership podcasts, including...

Interview with Dr. Helen Fisher, anthropologist and author
The First Sex: Women’s Natural Talents and How They are Changing the World

Looking Back; Looking Forward: A Women’s Journey
Interview with Emily Duncan, Vice President, Culture & Diversity, Hewlett-Packard
We invite you to visit the Global Dialogue Center, a virtual gathering place for people throughout the world with a focus on leadership, professional and personal development --- a place to think, question, explore new ideas, learn and connect with a purpose: helping us all become more effective leaders of our organizations, communities, schools, governments and families --- serving as catalysts for the change we need to create a better world than we know today.

www.globaldialoguecenter.com